LONDON DOCK STRIKE MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Liverpool, Manchester and Avonmouth are now involved.

LONDON, July 6.—Trade Union Leaders took strong measures yesterday to beat the dock strike, which was further extended, and now involves forty thousand workers in London, Manchester, Liverpool and Avonmouth.

If the strike continues to spread it is probable that other ports will be affected, and the fear exists among heads of unions that unless better council prevails the strike may before long spread to other transport workers, particularly railroad men, who for some time past have been in an aggressive mood in fear that companies may decrease further their wages.

Ireland is Tranquil as Britain, Says Mr. Healey

Free State Is Now Definitely Established.

10,000 HELD AS PRISONERS.

LONDON, July 5.—"Ireland to-day is as tranquil as Great Britain," said Timothy Healey, Governor General of the Irish Free State, in an interview with the Daily Express prior to his return to Ireland last evening, after conversations with the Imperial authorities over Irish affairs. "The Free State is now established definitely, despite the internal assaults that have been made upon it," the Governor General said. He added that now peace has been established the Government was preoccupied with how to terminate the situation in which to its sorrow it found itself, still holding ten thousand Irish men prisoners. The Government's purpose, Mr. Healey said, was to release these prisoners as rapidly as possible without exposing the public to a recrudescence of disorder and they were now being freed at the rate of about three hundred weekly.

BODY IS SEEN WHEN DERELICT GOES TO BOTTOM

Patrol Steamer Reports Finding of Unknown Lunenburg Vessel.

IS IT A TRAGEDY?

HALIFAX, July 5.—A radio message to the agent for the Marine and Fisheries Department here, received this afternoon via Cape Race, reports the sinking by an ice patrol ship of a dangerous derelict bearing distinctly the name of Lunenburg as the sailing port, but with the schooner's name almost defaced; but it was thought to be "F. W. Lunen." The message also reported finding an unidentified man's body on the surface after the hulk had gone down. No record has been discovered in Lunenburg or among the Marine Insurance offices of a schooner of the name given.

GETTING TRACEABLE

BERLIN, July 5.—The German Government is expected to issue forthwith a statement deprecating sabotage and all forms of active resistance in the Franco-Belgian occupied areas.

LONDON HAS BIG STRIKE

LONDON, July 4.—An unofficial dock strike, involving nearly 40,000 men, is causing considerable inconvenience, especially in handling food supplies of a perishable nature.

Murderers of Newfoundlander Will be Tried in Baffin Land

ROBERT JANES'S SLAYERS WILL COME BEFORE MONTREAL JUDGE AT POND'S INLET, HUDSON'S BAY SOON

OTTAWA, July 5.—The ship Arctic is leaving again for the Arctic Circle on July 8, from Quebec. J. D. Craig, an engineer of the International Boundary Commission, is in charge of the expedition formed for the purpose of carrying supplies to two Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts and also to establish a new post at the north end of Ellesmere Island, at Cape Sabine. A party of surveyors, naturalists and engineers are going for the purpose of investigating the natural resources of the Canadian far North. Capt. Bernier will again be in command of the ship. Indidentally the Arctic will carry the machinery there by the Royal Mounted Police on a charge of murdering Robert Janes, a charge of murdering Robert Janes Crawford, Baffin Land, in 1920. About forty people will go north on the Arctic.

MANY TROOPS ARE NOW IN SYDNEY

All Quiet at Mines and Steel Works.

SYDNEY, July 5.—Reinforcements for military guards now on duty in Cape Breton strike area were on their way this afternoon by special trains from points as far west as Winnipeg, and recruiting for Provincial police units is progressing in no untoward incident developed. To-night the band of H.M.S. Wisteria, official reports emanated from Halifax to-day that the Militia would be mobilized if available, permanent forces proved incapable of coping with the situation in Cape Breton. Quiet has reigned among the ten thousand miners and steel workers during the past 24 hours and military occupation of the trouble centres is proceeding. Brigadier General Thacker, officer commanding military district number six, arrived in Sydney this morning inspecting operations of troops and will probably remain to personally supervise their activities in Cape Breton.

QUIET PREVAILS

SYDNEY, July 5.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Through out today and up until a late hour to-night the Cape Breton strike area was so quiet one might almost hear the proverbial pin drop. Steel helmeted soldiers guarded the property of the British Empire Steel Corporation.

A CHURCH WAR

MOSCOW, July 5.—A new international Church war has begun. Dr. Tikhon, recently released from prison, signing himself boldly as Patriarch has addressed an appeal to all faithful Clergy and Laymen, deprecating the new Church and declaring his untrodding was illegal and ineffective. Tikhon's appeal brands the revivalists as seekers after profits, titles and awards.

BRITISH TROOPS IN "INDEPENDENCE DAY" PARADE

PORTLAND, Ore., July 5.—Pres-

The President said history was being made, for never before had British naval forces marched in an American Independence Day parade.

The Blood Feud OR Love's Renunciation

CHAPTER XVIII. Ravelled Ends

Now Meg this time spoke out of ignorance, for she had no personal knowledge of Carlotta. At the time of the rehearsals, after the performance which had laid the foundation of the tragedy, she had been confined to her house at Kildoon for domestic reasons and therefore had missed the opportunity of which Judy Rankine had made such good use.

"Decidedly not!" snapped Mrs. Garvock. "But things are like that in life. It is the insects who torment and make it intolerable!"

"Oh, I shouldn't call her an insect, exactly, Mrs. Garvock," said Meg with a sigh. "I have something to tell you. I spent two nights in London on the way home, and we went to the Imperial Theatre to see a play all London is talking about. And the lady who has made the play such a success is—Miss Carlyon!"

Mr. Garvock's face expressed the horror appropriate to the occasion, and a full mead of surprise.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Miss Carlyon as An Actress"

"You don't say so! Are you sure? I heard that she had gone away from Ayr, but of course we supposed that her object was to be with him, and to see him off at Liverpool."

"I am quite sure. I know her well enough to make no mistake. And there is no doubt that she is a great actress. As I sat there looking at and watching her, I felt nothing but pity for Alan Rankine, for what chance has he—a nameless adventurer in America—and she with the whole world practically at her feet?"

Lucy made a little nervous gesture with her hands, not lost upon Mrs. Sillars.

"If it is as you say," began Mrs. Garvock, "certainly risks are great. A great actress, is she? Now I wonder whether she 'knew' what she was going to do when he left her? And Judy—I am sure she would disapprove most highly! Now that she is supposed to be pledged to Stair, it is hardly the thing—I should have thought!"

"Oh, that is a matter of little importance. It is the personal side of the thing I should be afraid of. And if I were Alan's friend, or in his confidence, I should simply advise him to come back and take her out of it all. Otherwise—"

She shrugged her shoulders, and her expression was significant. Now while there was no venom or malice in Mrs. Sillars' tongue, or in her heart, she did some mischief that day which she afterwards could very heartily have wished undone. To her eagerness to be kind to these two lonely women, suffering through no fault of their own, she had done less than justice to a woman she knew nothing about.

"I was in town before I came to the Lees," she went on, finding that Mrs. Garvock did not seem inclined to pursue the subject, "and in the Sandgate I saw two furniture vans before the door of the Clock House; so quite evidently, Miss Carlyon's people are joining her in London. A great clearance, is it not? We could ill spare the Rankine's from Stair, Mrs. Garvock, but we shall have to call upon the new people and make them welcome. They are very nice, and will take great care of the house. I am sure."

Mrs. Sillars now having finished her tea, said she thought she would go, and bade them good-bye heartily, hoping they would soon come to Kildoon, and that all the trouble and worry would blow over.

She was genuinely sorry for them, for quite evidently they felt the position keenly, and, through no fault of their own were being talked about much more than they wished. Indeed the extraordinary number of new versions of the story rampant in the country would not bear telling. "Mother," said Lucy, when they were left alone, "I wish you would order the carriage, and let us go down to the Clock House to say good-bye."

HEMORRHOIDS
Do not suffer another day with itching, bleeding, or protruding Piles, or Hemorrhoids. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once, afford lasting benefit. For a bottle, call on Messrs. J. W. N. Johnstone, General Agents, 210, St. John's Street, St. John's, Nfld. Sample box 25c.

"Why should we do that, my dear? It would surely be more dignified to leave them alone now."

"Oh, but Mrs. Carlyon wrote a very kind letter. You said yourself it was a kind letter."

"I did, and I answered it, Lucy. Nothing more is needed."

"But I do so want to go! I must go, mother! Please don't refuse, or I will get ready and walk down myself."

"You may order the carriage, then; though it will inconvenience the people greatly. I am sure, to have us calling on the very same day, the furniture vans are at the door."

"You know that won't trouble Mrs. Carlyon or the Professor, the least bit," Lucy reminded her.

Shortly after they were being driven over the smooth roads, in the delightful sunshine, towards the town. Arrived at the Sandgate, they found the pantechnicons at the Clock House door, precisely as Mrs. Sillars had said.

The coachman was instructed to stop a little to one side, and both ladies alighted and walked up to the door, which was wide open. When no one answered their ring, at the bell, they ventured in, and ascended the steps from the lower hall to the first landing, where they encountered Mrs. Carlyon in a strange costume, apparently directing operations.

She had a small Chippendale dressing glass in her hand, which she nearly dropped in her surprise at the sight of the ladies from The Lees. But though surprised, it was just as Lucy said, she was not in the least disconcerted, but welcomed them quite warmly, and invited them to come in to a small sitting room at the back, which had been left untouched.

"I've just had tea in there. Can I offer you some?"

They thanked her, but assured her they had already had it.

"I am quite glad to see you, and to have a chance of sitting down for a few minutes. What a business this removal is! And this came upon us with such suddenness. Of course, the Professor has gone! He went yesterday. Oh, yes; it was much better. He is in anguish when this sort of thing happens! I do hope that this move will be the last, and that this lot will not trouble us any more."

So much citizen of the world was Mrs. Carlyon that she saw and felt nothing incongruous in the visit of The Lees ladies, and no thought of apologizing for the condition of the house occurred to her. Still carrying the glass, she ushered them into the little room, where she kept accurate accounts, and such stores as the limited size of the establishment permitted. It had an old-fashioned knee-hole desk across the window, on which the teatray still stood, a long low couch, an easy chair and a faded rug on the floor.

Both ladies seated themselves on the sofa, while Mrs. Carlyon leaned against the corner of the writing-table.

"Such an upset! But, mind, I do not say I'm sorry to leave Ayr just now! I suppose you haven't heard what has happened to Carlotta?"

Mrs. Garvock pondered a moment, and then said outright that Mrs. Sillars called upon them that very afternoon with the astounding news. "Sillars—Sillars? I don't know her. How did she know? Because, though the play was spoken of in the newspapers, Carlotta's name was not given—only her stage name, Miss Margaret Tenderton."

"Mrs. Sillars has just come from London, where she saw her in the play."

Mrs. Carlyon's face flushed a little with pleasurable excitement. "What did she say about it? Do tell me! You can't imagine what I have felt like shut up here, while all that was going on in London."

"Mrs. Sillars says she is a great actress," said Mrs. Garvock kindly; for now that all chance of relationship with what she called "those queer people" was at an end, she could afford to be very friendly and interested in everything concerning them.

"Of course I have always known that! And if it hadn't been for her father, she would have gone on the stage long since. It was our old friend Graham Madox, who persuaded her. He was a student at Peterhouse in my husband's time there, and we knew him very well. It's a splendid chance for her, though I do not quite understand why she should have taken it up all of a sudden just now."

She hesitated just there, remembering that she was hovering perilously near the edge of debatable ground.

"No doubt Miss Carlyon had her own sufficient reasons," suggested Mrs. Garvock.

"Oh, probably. There was never one like her for knowing her own mind! But I can't help wondering whether she got Mr. Rankine's consent before he went away. My belief is that when a woman goes on the stage, when she has gifts like Carlotta, she hasn't the same interest in matrimony. I shouldn't be at all surprised if that came to an end too. You see, with a girl like Carlotta, one never knows! You can't lay down hard and fast rules for her, or calculate with any certainty how she is going to behave."

Lucy's eyes fluttered down, but Mrs. Carlyon, quite unconscious of the undercurrents, babbled on.

"Of course, she may have taken it just to fill and distract her mind just now; but I know far better than most people what is likely to be the end of it. She'll never give it up after she has felt the glamour of it."

"You gave it up—did you not?" asked Mrs. Garvock, with a smile.

Mrs. Carlyon shrugged her ample shoulders and her pretty faded face, looking a little tired and old with the bright May sunshine on it, smile ruefully.

"Oh, I was never a great actress!—only a comedy performer, and not much at that. But I liked the life, and the Professor had no idea what I gave up when I married and went down to that stuffy old college to live! I tell you, I nearly died the first year. But, you see, I promised him to give up, and I kept my promise. It's no use pretending I'm sorry for what Carlotta has done, because I'm not. I'm glad, and I hardly know how to bear myself till I get to London to see her in her proper place, where she ought to have been years ago if her father hadn't been so prejudiced."

"I suppose he gave in this time," murmured Mrs. Garvock merely for the sake of something to say.

"Carlotta didn't ask him. She simply wrote and said she was going to do it. He has gone up, poor dear man, with some idea of expostulating with her. He doesn't know that she is fixed up how irrevocably, for many months to come! But Carlotta knows how to manage him. I've no doubt that by to-day, she's got him talked over. They are a wonderful pair! The one is quite lost without the other. It was very kind of you to drop in like this to say good-bye. I did think I would write a line to-night, after I got down to the hotel to sleep, and tell you what had happened."

Universal Language
Makes Great Strides
In England

LONDON, June 9 (A.P.)—Esperanto the universal language, is making much headway in England among the commercial classes. The British Esperanto Association, organized in the interests of furthering the language in Great Britain, has grown by leaps and bounds.

The association has about 15,000 active membership, and classes are held in London seven times a week. Hundreds of pupils have already graduated from the course and readily find positions translating the language for use on the continent, where it is now becoming a popular form of communication between commercial houses.

"Will you let me kiss you if I give you a penny?" asked the little boy's aunt.

"A penny!" he exclaimed. "Why, I get more than that for taking castor oil."

CANADA MAY PROHIBIT EXPORT OF PULP WOOD

May Result in Increase in Manufacturing Industries in Canada

OTTAWA.—Hon. W. E. Fielding's notice of motion to the effect that the Export Act be amended "by providing that the Governor-in-Council by regulation may prohibit the export of pulp wood of the variety kind, place of origin or having particulars of ownership or production prescribed in the regulation," is considered here as a very important measure. There was evidence early in the session that the campaign along these lines was having effect, but only recently has its actual progress been so apparent.

The action of the government in making artificial silk products dutiable has had quick effect in the announcement that Courtland's, a large English silk manufacturing firm, will build a plant near Quebec City for the manufacture of artificial silk. In deciding on its course the government was fully aware of the developments likely to follow, though they were hardly expected so soon. It is understood that the chances of a considerable addition to the pulp and paper industry are good, the viscose process used largely in the manufacture of artificial silk being based on the use of certain materials used in this industry.

Canada imported $2,000,000 of artificial silk last year; but the big attraction is the strong foreign demand which Canada, because of her large supplies of raw materials, should have an advantage in supplying.

It is understood that the manufacture of artificial silk employs quite a large percentage of labor.

NEWFOUNDLAND METHODIST CONFERENCE

PASTORAL ADDRESS, 1923.

To the Members of the Methodist Church Within the Bounds of the Methodist Conference

DEARLY BELOVED—We greet you as your pastors in the name of Our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we both have access to the Father by Faith. That there may be an increase of the Divine favor and advancement and growth of the work of Grace in your hearts through the knowledge of Him who hath called us to glory and virtue, is our prayer.

At this time, many of you will recall with sorrow the memory of the Rev. W. H. Browning, whose life has so impressed itself upon the Methodist people of our dear land. With strong faith in God, and in labour more abundant, he ever sought to do his Father's will.

Two probationers, Brethren Howell and Martin, faithful and promising young men, have also been called home.

Year by year the Company of Witnesses is growing larger, with those whose faces were once familiar to us.

We will not be negligent to put you in remembrance of these things which you have been taught, that you may be established in the Faith. Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works. Love we believe to be the basis of moral excellence. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy heart, with all thy soul, with all thy might." "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness." Therefore, set your hearts unto all the word of this law, which we shall command your children to observe to do. For it is not a vain thing for you, because it is your life. Out of love of God our Father, we heartened each other to the doing of things that were beautiful and sought to spread Scriptural Holiness throughout the land. Much of our failure in life to-day is due to loss of courage and that enthusiasm which is born of the inspiration that cometh from above.

The times in which we live are trying times. The conditions are found in the social and political world are testing the patience and faith of men. The Spirit of the Age, of Elijah the Prophet and of the age of the Baptist is not yet dead. The temptation of making love and friendship to the world is as great as ever, but it is also true that our mode of life may be under the guidance of the Spirit. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the Sons of God. Be not moulded after the fashion of the age, but shape your life in the image of the Lord in following his steps, in the character of Love, Mercy, and Humility.

We are grateful to the Giver of all good for His gracious blessings. Doors of opportunity to us, b-mmk Doors of opportunity have been opened to us. Guidance in our activities has been given, and in many instances, we have been enabled to lead men and women unto the Kingdom. Your hearty co-operation and loyalty in the Great Work have greatly encouraged and helped us.

The Family Life
It has been said that the most important force in modern civilization is the home fireside.

If that be so, then everything which threatens the integrity of the family life is an enemy to Christian civilization. The consecration of the home is the basis of the public assembly. The love that controls angry tempers and overcomes disappointment is an indispensable element in the parental authority and guidance which should be observed and re-established in the homes of our people.

With sorrow we have often observed neglect of parental guidance and careful family government. We also agree with the report of the committee of evangelism and social service when it says that parents must realize their immeasurable responsibility for more careful and systematic religious instruction in the home. We place special emphasis upon the conduct of regular worship by the family as a unit. Grace at meals, the regular reading of the bible, singing of hymns, and daily prayer, all conduce to the integrity of the family.

Until the child reaches the age of responsibility the parent represents to the child both the government of God and the individual conscience, and it is of solemn importance that the child will learn well the lesson of obedience to firm, loving, intelligent family government.

Humanly speaking, Methodism owes a great deal to the faith and good family government of Susannah Wesley. Let us not be indifferent to home training and early conversion and think irresistible grace will ultimately turn our children from sin. The statement has been made on good authority, "That the race never produced a more intelligent, more heroic and Christianlike girlhood than we have in our Christian homes to-day. Some of the finest missionary work which does not always appear in print is being done on many of the home mission fields by these consecrated girls and women."

Small Feet they are to guide
In Wisdom's ways,
And helping lips to teach
Blessings and Praise;
And wistful aged eyes,
Grow dim with tears,
Awearying for the light
Beyond the years.

Missions
The history of Methodism in Newfoundland has been a great one. Following in John Wesley's footsteps we have had a deep interest in the task of building up the Kingdom of God both at home and abroad. Along our shores over a hundred years ago Missionaries from the Old Land carried the message of the love of God and the infinite value of the human soul. The ranks of Methodism have always had zealous friends and sturdy champions of every great and good cause. The missionary spirit, we believe, is as much alive as ever it was. With increased information has come a firmer hold upon Missionary principle. We are moved to activity more by love and duty than by sentiment. We earnestly desire your faithful and effective support in our work and your prayers that fruit may abound in all our work of faith, labor and love. We are reminded of the fact that we are still to some degree dependent upon the missionary board for the maintenance of missionaries on our home Mission field. The mother church has twelve in family, and we are members one of another. The spiritual needs of our people have been met because means to some extent have been sent us by the Methodist mission board.

There are other ways by which our Connexionalism has made us beneficiaries, such as the help received by our superannuated ministers, and the splendid literature for our Sunday schools, and the sympathy and special prayers of our great church.

Prohibition
In the more remote past pastors and people have been as one in the furtherance of temperance and prohibition; and we do not wish to lose this unity of spirit in a great cause. Though we have not always achieved success we have succeeded generally in maintaining a clear conscience. We still have need, however, to keep in view our high calling and to seek and have that love which suffereth long and is kind, which is not easily provoked, and thinketh no evil. The world has its allurements but the Christian is above the world. His life is hidden with God; hence his courage, his truth, his power. He finds his pleasure not in the diversions of life, but in Christ. Our Church is greatly strengthened by men who are decisive in action, and who will not compromise with the world.

General Conference
The general conference of the Methodist Church was held at Toronto last Fall. The object of this gathering of representatives of our churches from the Atlantic to the Pacific may be found in the words of the general superintendent's address. They are as follows:

"This assembly in the Providence of God has been called together to consider how best to mediate the Gospel of the Grace of God to such a time as this, and to plan for the effective realization of its powers."

That our church is not declining in strength, in so far as statistics can reveal the intellectual and spiritual life of the church may be seen from the following increases of the Quadrennial over the preceding one:—

Total membership Increase 18,763
Sunday School Increase 19,556
Gifts for Missions Increase $1,484,227
These figures inspire thanksgiving for the past and courage for the future.

The question of church union was a vital one to the general conference. A committee was appointed to print a statement of information showing the advances made towards church union by this general conference, this statement in due time to be read from the pulpits of our land.

Evangelism
We are learning more and more the meaning of the word Evangelism. Evangelism is not completed when persons are converted and confess Jesus Christ as Lord and Master. All such should be enrolled as members of the church, and be developed by many processes of Christian nurture into full-grown Christians. Beliefs and sentiments are of no avail unless wrought into deeds of righteousness.

Sunday School
Again we would remind you of the place the Sunday school holds in its relation to the church as a whole. Every support by way of inspiration and encouragement to teachers and S.S. workers should be given, for if we fail in the work of nurturing and training the children, we fail in all.

Means of Grace
Neither can we emphasize too strongly the value and importance of attendance at the class meeting and the observance of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. These are means of grace to those who believe in them and use them. In this age which boasts that its philosophy is a philosophy of facts, it may be well for us to be reminded that they are heavenly places lying very near us and that we can come unto Mount Zion and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem. We are running a great risk of losing what we have gained when we neglect the God appointed public and private means of grace. May we ever have the witness of His spirit, His guidance, and the assurance that all we do is right and according to His will and word, (well pleasing in His sight).

Beloved, follow not that which is evil but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God.

You may be misunderstood by the world, for the world knoweth not God, but if we are the sons of God by faith in Jesus, we are blessed of Him in life and death.

Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him. Every man that hath his hope in pure. They are blessed forever who keep the commands of God and the faith of Jesus.

In closing our address to you, we exhort that ye rejoice in the Lord always, for He is able to supply all your needs according to His riches in Christ Jesus.

In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God and the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.
May the God of grace, who hath called us into his eternal glory by Christ Jesus make you perfect, establish and strengthen you.
Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To Him be glory now and forever. Amen.—W. J. MORRIS, President.

AT THE CITY HALL

The weekly meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon. Deputy Mayor Martin presided and Councilors Outerbridge, Vinnicombe, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. The meeting was a short one, routine matters only being given attention.

T.P. Halley, on behalf of his client, Mr. H. Budden, LeMarchant Rd., served notice on the council of his intention to take action unless his client is either permitted to repair or make alterations to his dwelling. The property is at the corner of LeMarchant Road and Pleasant Street, and the Council for some time past has had under consideration the removal of the range of houses so as to widen this thoroughfare. Mr. Halley is to be informed that the council in the course of a week or two will give a definite answer in the matter.

E.J. Neary claimed compensation to the amount of $150.00 for damage to his property, Pleasant Street, during the storm on the night of the 27th ulto. His communication was referred to the City solicitor for report as to the council's position.

Mr. Harold MacPherson wrote re traffic conditions at the junction of Newtown Road and Parade St. stating that the board fence around St. George's Field constituted a "blind corner" which was very dangerous to motorists and drivers of other vehicles.

It was decided that the Nfld Football League, who are the lessees of the property be communicated with.

Mr. F. McKay called attention to arrangements made last year with regard to extension sewer, Alexander Street, to which he contributed his portion of cost, and asked that the work be proceeded with. It was ordered accordingly.

Inspector-General Hutchings stated he had no objection to permit being given Mr. Christian to erect garage at corner of Banerman and Gower Streets, provided the building was properly ventilated and covered with non-inflammable material.

The following plans were passed subject to the approval of the City Engineer, and on the usual conditions: Dwelling—Jas. Lucas, McNeil Street; Extensions—A. Warnell, 6 Monroe Street; A. S. Wadden, Buchanan Street; G. Colish, LeMarchant Road; A. Buckingham, Job Street; C. Picco, Carter's Hill.

It was brought to the notice of the Board that many of the seats placed in various parts of the city, such as the Promenade, St. Thomas's Avenue and of Garrison Hill, (particularly the last mentioned) had been considerably damaged by some persons unknown. Such destruction of public property on the part of citizens is certainly to be regretted, and the council intend making inquiries and having the guilty parties severely dealt with.

A discussion took place as to the motor traffic in Bowring Park, and it was unanimously decided that motor cars and cycles be not allowed to enter the park.

Petitions were received from Taxi owners with reference to the new traffic regulations and it was decided that the council will meet a deputation from the respective stands at a special meeting to be held for the purpose.

Reports of the City Engineer, Sanitary Supervisor, etc., were tabled, also the health report showing seventeen new cases of Scarlet Fever in the city during the week.

Payrolls and Accounts presented were ordered paid and regulations for the departments acceded to. The meeting then adjourned.

ANOTHER DRAFT

LONDON, Ont., July 5.—Orders were received here last night from Ottawa to prepare a further draft of the Medical Ordnance Army Service and other units for immediate transportation to the Sydney strike area.

BANK OF ENGLAND RAISES RATE

LONDON, July 5.—The Bank of England to-day raised the rate to four per cent. from the three per cent. level, which had prevailed for the year. The raise was not unexpected in financial circles.

ORDER RECEIVED

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 5.—The Turkish Government has rescinded the order, issued on Monday, prohibiting all foreigners, except British, French and Italians, from leaving the country without permission from the authorities at Angora.

MANY DEAD AS RESULT OF COLLISION

LEEDS, July 5.—The Manchester express, drawn by two engines, collided with an engine outside a tunnel while running at full speed. The crash piled up a mass of wreckage from which doctors and nurses and ambulance men recovered the bodies of six dead and seven badly injured.

Why LIBBY'S MILK is specially rich in butter fat.

Libby's Milk is known as the milk that good cooks use because it is so rich in butter fat. 7½ teaspoons in every 16 oz. can! It has this high percentage because, first, it comes from selected herds in the finest dairy sections of the country, where men specialize in raising cows that give exceptionally rich milk. Then right there, we remove more than half the moisture, making it double rich.

Thousands of women are using this richer, milk. You will find it gives the very richness you want in all your cooking. Get a can; try it today in one of your specialties.

THE FORCES OF LABOUR

With 10,500 mine and steel workers on strike in Cap Breton with 40,000 dockmen on strike in London and with labour unrest in various countries, the fight between Labour and Capital assumes a keen world-wide interest, and relations between the two bodies appear to be strained very dangerously.

The forces of Labour seem to be developing greater strength every day and its organizations and unions are forging new links of understanding for centralized action for securing their demands.

In this connection it may be noted that Mr. John C. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, consisting of over a million workingmen, has recently reached an agreement with the mine unions of England and other countries, under which agreement the miners of those countries will refuse to mine coal intended to be sent to America at any time when American miners are on strike for better pay or for any other cause. Similarly, American miners under take these conditions when English or other miners are on strike.

If this agreement be adhered to it will give labour unions a vastly greater power than heretofore possessed, will soon cement the coal miners of the world into a centralized force and will constitute it as a supremely organized factor of immense controlling strength.

When the miners' strike occurred in Great Britain a few years ago, it will be noted that American mine owners sent huge quantities of American coal to the Old Country, which largely helped to defeat the purposes of the British miners. When the American coal strike took place, English mine owners sent large shipments to America; which indicated a mutual understanding existing between the mine owners of the respective countries and their common and natural desire to defeat the forces with which on occasions of strikes, they have to contend, sometimes under very adverse conditions. Evidently, the miners' unions have combatted or are trying to combat this co-operation of mine owners, and the result is the Lewis agreement referred to above. The workers of the various countries will not lift their hands against each other.

Thus we see that the cords are tightening, and the world's workers as well as the world's capitalists, are intending to pursue common courses in order to achieve their common interests in life. Because Labour and Capital are each united as between themselves, it is urgently necessary for the general good for both parties to allow settlement of disputes on the basis of reason, truth and justice. The one that leaders will recognize this necessity the better will it be for the world.

THE BURDEN OF WAR

Speaking at Oxford recently, David Lloyd George stated England had spent $50,000,000 on the world war. The ex-Premier pointed out that in peace times, it was most unfortunate that the Old Country could not sweep away the slums which housed somewhere 3 and 3,500,000 people. Such a statement as this shows the frightful enormity of war and armaments. The world's peoples are taxed with unbearable burdens and the world compelled to find billions of dollars which results in the killing of humanity and destruction of property. And slums remain, but their betterment is rendered the more remote by the colossal extra burdens on state and taxpayers as a result of wars. No wonder the world is searching for a solution from its greatest curse, and looking to that future horizon, when the battle flags will be unfurled no longer.

HUDDESFIELD, Eng., July 5—Six persons were killed, including two railway guards, and seven injured in a train wreck at Diggle near here to-day.

YESTERDAY AT THE HOUSE

Yesterday's sitting of the House was a brief one and very little business was done.

In answer to Mr. Hunt the Minister of Justice stated that the Labrador Boundary dispute would come to trial in June 1924. The Barristers and Solicitors engaged are as follows:—Sir John Simon, K.C., Mr. Barrington-Ward, K.C., Mr. W. T. Monckton, Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C. and Sir Richard Squires, K.C.

The Railway Settlement Bill was read a second time and ordered to be referred to Committee of the Whole House to-day.

On motion for adjournment, Mr. Walsh for the second time brought up the matter of the charge that had been made against a Minister of the Crown, and asked the Attorney General what he meant to do about it. Mr. Warren said that up to that time he had heard no definite charge made against any particular minister and told Mr. Walsh if he desired to make a charge to do so in the proper way. Mr. Walsh said he was not a lawyer and that he would have nothing else to do with it.

Sir Michael Cashin then took up the subject and told the House his side of the Lornal Bounty Scandal, pointing out that he had been treated in a different manner in connection therewith from that in which the present charge was being treated. He alleged unfair and disloyal treatment of himself by his then leader, the present Lord Morris and stated that Sir Richard Squires, who was at that time Attorney General, had been cognisant of all that was on foot to get him, Sir Michael, out of the Cabinet when Sir Michael had finished his remarks the Prime Minister arose in his place to speak, but this was rendered extremely difficult by Sir Michael Cashin, who kept up a running fire of interruptions throughout Sir Richard's remarks. The Premier told Sir Michael that the House had done him the courtesy of giving him an uninterrupted hearing when he wanted to speak but that he, Sir Michael, could not act the gentleman long enough to let anyone else reply.

The Prime Minister went on to say that he had not engaged in debate with Sir Michael Cashin for the past two or three years and he did not intend to begin now, but he could not sit quietly in his seat and hear Lord Morris vilified in the manner attempted by Sir Michael Cashin. Sir Richard said that Sir Michael Cashin or anyone else could belittle and vilify him as much as they pleased, he rather enjoyed it. He certainly did not deem such attributes of sufficient moment to demand a reply from him, but this was a different matter. Lord Morris had been bitterly attacked by Sir Michael Cashin when he was not able to defend himself and he, Sir Richard, was going to defend him in his absence. He had been associated with Lord Morris as a law clerk first, then as a law partner and for a number of years as a colleague in the Morris Administration. The Prime Minister said he probably knew Lord Morris better than any man in the country and he could say that he was a man of whom Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders could justly feel proud. He was by far and away the greatest statesman this country has ever produced, nor has his whole-souled interest in his native land waned a single jot even though he is far removed from her shores and interested in affairs that might well serve to diminish the ardour with which he had followed the destinies of this Colony. The Prime Minister thought Sir Michael's un-called for attack and unfounded insinuations came with poor grace and he deeply regretted the incident.

The House then adjourned till 3 o'clock this afternoon.

SWEET GIRL GRADUATES

Los Angeles Times: Newspaper inquiry centred upon the sweet girl graduates that 70 per cent. of the college girls still consider matrimony as their best career. As between the home and an independent life in the business world 70 per cent. prefer the home with its children and lace curtains. Some figure that they can have both children and a career, but a majority of them prefer home life to a career—if they must decide between them. Asked what they thought was wrong with the average young man, a good many of the fair graduates announced that he was all right. To those who found fault his outstanding failing was his conceit. Most of the girls agreed that there was too much conversation about flappers. They said that the social flapper was not vastly different from their grandmothers at the same age. A jazy environment may have coloured her life, but her heart was the same. The responses to the questionnaires would indicate that the college girl is still safe and sane.

Towels with coloured strips should not be washed until they have first been soaked overnight in salt water. Wash in hot, soapy water mixed with a cupful of vinegar.

BEEF FROM WEST AFRICA

Kenya Journal: We do not see any hope of an export trade in beef from this country unless under some form of Preference which is most unlikely as the Home Government was ever loath to help its overseas colonies and dependencies though not chary of assisting aliens, as instance the huge prewar advertising campaign to assist Greece in the exporting of currants. To sum up, the position of the stockbreeders in Kenya today is that they are without outside markets and even the full benefit of the local markets is denied them through the competition of native cattle from the reserves.

He was a young lawyer who had just started practising in a small town, and he hung his sign outside his office door. It read: "A Swindler."

A stranger who called to consult him saw the sign and said: "My goodness, man, look at that sign! Don't you see how it reads? Put in your first name. Alexander, Ambrose or whatever it is."

"Oh, yes, I know," said the lawyer, resignedly, "but I don't like to do it." "Why not?" asked the client. "It looks bad as it is. What is your first name?" "Adam."

Catalina and Port Union Services

During the vacancy of the mission, including both Catalina and Port Union, occasioned by the removal of the Revd. R. F. Mercer, the late Incumbent, to that of Fogo, whither he had received a call to fill the existing vacancy there, the Revd. G. S. Chamberlain, former Incumbent of the Mission, but now upon the retired clergy list, kindly volunteered his services, so that those of the Church might be continued as usual without break or hindrance, and although an octogenarian, this has been accomplished without any disabling effects to himself. Sunday by Sunday, each Church, S. Peter's and that of the Holy Martyrs, alternately, has received the benefit of his ministrations, but now the advent into the mission of the Incumbent, elect, the Revd. T. W. Upward, has relieved him of any further responsibility in that direction.

Upon Sunday evening last, those who were privileged to attend the service at the Church of the "Holy Martyrs," must have realized the beauty and dignity of the Anglican ritual and felt that it was good to be there. The clergy, the Revs G. S. Chamberlain, Canon W. Lockyer and T. W. Upward were present, the former sitting amongst the congregation, whilst the Canon read the lessons, the Incumbent said the prayers and preached from Psalm viii, 4, 5.—"What is man that thou art mindful of him, and the Son of Man that Thou visited him? Thou madest him lower than the angels; to crown him with glory and worship." The sermon was an eloquent and able exposition of the text and riveted closely the attention of the large congregation present, amongst whom were the Hon. Sir W. F. Coaker and visitors.

Canada Loses Her Trade With Newfoundland

Canadian Exports 8 Million Dollars Against 16 Millions in 1920.

TORONTO—Several of Newfoundland's importing houses declare that Canada is losing trade to the United States for the reason that there is no trade representative in the country to represent Canada in keeping in touch with conditions.

The United States consul at St. John's is in close touch with the business community with the result that business is going to the States which formerly went to Canada. Canada did have a commercial agent there, but for some reason he was withdrawn.

Inquiries by The Financial Post confirm that Canada has now no trade representative in Newfoundland. At one time there was an arrangement by which a commercial agent gave the Canadian government part of his time, but this was cancelled, and all that is done at present is that a junior trade commissioner goes to Newfoundland every few months and stays there for a short time.

The matter has been taken up with the C. M. A. and laid before the department of trade at Ottawa. The department has felt that the market is one which should be developed by their own representatives. It is to be hoped, however, that Hon. Mr. Robb, who has been reorganising his department in a very efficient way, will go further into this matter to see that Canada is given such representatives in Newfoundland as justified by trade opportunities.

Trade figures which have been published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show that Canadian exports to Newfoundland, which amounted to $16,175,443 for the year ending in 1920, and $16,676,728 in 1921, declined to $9,317,939 in 1922, and $3,523,264 in 1923.

"Children," said the teacher, instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy; simply be yourselves and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings nor draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice one bright lad turned in the following: "We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in us. In me there is my stomach, lungs, heart, liver two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of candy and my dinner."

Provided you are any way familiar with American public life, these names will be tremendously significant to you:

William Jennings Bryan, Frank A. Vanderlip, Roger W. Babson, George W. Wickersham, Cardinal O'Connell, John B. Clark, Professor Irving Fisher of Yale University, Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of the Protestant Episcopal Church, John R. Mott, Miss Mary E. Wooley, president of Mount Holyoke College, Mrs. Philip North Moore, president National Council of Women, and many others.

"After a devastating conflict which has cost millions of lives, created immeasurable hatred and piled up a debt of fifty dollars for every minute of time since Christ was born, the nations of the earth—apparently having learned nothing—are once more playing the old game of competitive imperialism and competitive armament," declares the statement.

"There are some amongst us, of whom the signatories of this appeal form a small group, who regard war as the most ruinous organized sin which mankind now faces; who are sure that the war system and the Christian gospel cannot permanently abide together on the same earth; and who clearly see that the spirit of war and the spirit of the gospel are antithetical, the one representing what the other hates and would destroy."

"We will not believe that mankind is so deficient in character and intelligence as to make the rational solution of our international problems impossible and to commit us to the continued risk of insane fear, hatred and collective destruction. And we are certain that unless the Church of Christ takes now a clear and consistent stand on this matter of life and death to our civilization and to the world, she will merit the contempt of men and the judgment of God."

"We therefore urge all the people of the churches, and all ministers in particular, to an outspoken declaration that the war system and the gospel of Christ are diametrically and irreconcilably opposed."

"We would have every Christian Church the center of a frank and courageous antagonism to war and everything that makes war, until in our country and in all lands we succeed in reinstating Christian loyalty to Christ where it belongs—far above all local prejudice, racial hatred and divisive nationalism."

"Little could give me more deep-seated pleasure than to witness the people of Newfoundland, rising as one people and declining solemnly that they are against war and against all things that make war and against all men who conspire for war and against the imperialism that results in war."

Benjamin Franklin said: "There never was a good war or a bad peace."

The railroad telegraphers' union of America has opened at St. Louis, Mo., the "Telegraphers' National Bank," with a capital of $500,000. E. J. Manion, president of the union, announced that deposits of $1,500,000 were assured for the opening.

And so the movement proceeds. The greatest feature above all features in this marvellous age in which we are living is the way Labor is coming to the front. We have had kings, emperors and Kaisers and czars and generals for ages, and what good have they done the world and the common people? What have they done but given us war and death and destruction? Labor has never ruled, and so Labor comes to the front with no evil past to live down, but with clean slate and honest heart. We are entering upon the Labor Age.

I see that the government of France has issued a new 10-centime postage stamp bearing the portrait of the late Louis Pasteur, the greatest bacteriologist in the world, who died recently. I am glad Pasteur was a great scientist and a great benefactor of the human race. His name will go down into international history for his development of the first successful treatment of rabies, that dread disease. Whenever you hear of pasteurized milk, or pasteurized cheese, or pasteurized anything, you are hearing an unconscious tribute to the great Pasteur. Pasteur's discoveries have resulted in saving the lives of millions of people.

And so I like to see him honored. It has not been often, lately, that I have found myself in agreement with any act of the French government; now I can join enthusiastically with it. One Pasteur is of greater usefulness and service to his fellow-men than fifty dozen military generals.

I hope to see the day in Newfoundland when our postage stamps will bear the portrait of one who has been a noble benefactor to humanity and progress in Newfoundland—President Coaker.

Pope Holds Grave Fears for Future

URGES FRANCE AND GERMANY TO AGREE ON REPARATIONS.

ROME, June 28.—The Pope has written to Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, saying that despite the attempts made since the beginning of his Pontificate to secure pacification of Europe, international relations had not improved, but had even become worse, justifying grave anxiety for the future.

"While we are striving with all our strength and all the means at our disposal to bring about the mitigation of the present serious general sufferings," writes the Pope, "we ought to take advantage of every opportunity to co-operate to bring about the desired pacification of peoples and individuals in Christ. We entreat those who hold the peoples' destinies in their hands to consider the various questions, and that of reparations, in that Christian spirit which does not separate the exigencies of justice from those of social charity on which the perfection of the life of people is based."

"It is in the intention to repair the very serious damage inflicted on the debtor displayed real goodwill to reach an equitable agreement by using impartial judgment on the limits of his solvency and to undertake to supply to the judges every facility for careful and exact scrutiny, then justice and social charity, as well as the creditors' own interests, seem to require that more should not be asked of the debtor than he can give without completely exhausting his resources and productive power to his own irreparable detriment and that of his creditors, not to mention social disturbances which might mean the final ruin of all Europe and a continual menace to fresh and ruinous conflagrations."

"It is just that creditors should have guarantees proportionate to the importance of their claims, insuring the latter's recovery, on which their vital interests depend, but we leave to them to consider if it is necessary to maintain to that end territorial occupations imposing grave sacrifices on the occupied countries, and whether it would not be better to substitute even progressively, other guarantees not less efficacious, and certainly less painful."

Chintz or cretonne covers and draperies may be dry-cleaned with bran, powderer chalk, and set mixed together in equal proportions, and rubbed over the material with a piece of flannel.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The near future will see the perfection of radio movies. Every "listener-in," with the aid of a special apparatus, contained in a box about a foot square, and a small curtain, will be able to see as well as hear over the versatile radio, according to C. Francis Jenkins, of this city.

Last week, Prof. Jenkins, who has previously demonstrated the transmission of still pictures by radio, showed on a screen in his laboratory the movements of his hand and other objects held in front of his radio transmitting apparatus in another room. The apparatus used in transmitting still pictures was employed in the last experiment, but a new "lens-faced prismatic ring" was introduced to show a rapid succession of pictures depicting movement.

Perfection of the moving-picture radio transmitting set now awaits only the manufacture of a new and more powerful electric lamp of the "corona-glow" type. In the recent demonstration a temporary lamp was made by the inventor, but it is not strong enough to transmit large pictures. The question of rapidly is solved, Mr. Jenkins says, as he has already sent pictures at twice the standard movie speed. What he needs is a better and stronger lamp which will stand up when the signal strength is increased about 3,000 times, as is necessary in sending pictures in motion.

Not only actual pictures of moving bodies can be transmitted, by pointing the machine at them, but films can be broadcast, Mr. Jenkins claims, and shown on screens in theatres or homes where proper receiving and reproducing apparatus and a screen are available. When the power of the light is raised the size of the picture can be increased, was explained.

Radio experts of the navy, who saw the first demonstration between two rooms of Mr. Jenkins's laboratory on Connecticut avenue, say that the invention is adaptable in military operations as well as in commercial fields. They point out that a transmitter used in an airplane over the enemy fleet or trenches would give officers far in the rear an actual view of the fall of shells and all front-line activities. In the commercial field, with some adaptations, moving picture distributors might transmit their films to subscribers by way of radio instead of by express, saving time and the making of many copies.

With the completion of his new lamp, probably not sooner than several weeks, Mr. Jenkins promises to give a long-distance demonstration, transmitting pictures of objects in motion and perhaps films, between Washington and probably Philadelphia.

Great Cable Service

LONDON, June 30.—Reuter's agency states that the cable messages in Reuter's service from London reporting the result of the Derby reached their respective destinations in the following times:—Capetown, half-an-hour; Durban, 1 minute; Melbourne, 1-2 minutes; Sydney, 2-2 minutes; Bombay, 1-2 minutes; Calcutta, 4-4-2 minutes; Cairo, half-an-hour; Hong Kong, 3 minutes; and Shanghai, 3-2 minutes.

Equally good service went to North America through the Associated Press and The Canadian Press.

The West Indies

(By J. L. A. in Montreal Star.)
Will Mr. Baldwin's categorical denial that the British Government have ever contemplated the sale of the British West Indies to the United States be sufficient to put an end to this persistent rumor? There have been official denials before, but the report has continued to hold its ground steadily. When first it appeared in Britain, from a palpably American source, it was regarded as a subject of humorous comment. As an example of the facility of imagination which the American newspaperman is said to possess, it was not without its value but as a serious proposal regarding the settlement of war debts, it was rightly held to be worthless. Yet it cropped up at regular intervals, displaying a dragon-like vitality which defied the swords of criticism and contradiction alike. Propaganda poured from its nostrils, and though the British Prime Minister has once again struck off its head it will no doubt grow a new one.

For propaganda has this queer result—that in time it hypnotizes the people. It is as if M. Coue were to turn international bandit and for some unscrupulous purpose were to persuade a whole nation that they needed to be cured of some ill from which they did not suffer. Though at first the British people burst into mocking laughter, so stubborn was the rumor that little by little men felt wondering whether their elected servants might not have entered into some mercenary negotiations without the consent of their masters. They grew suspicious. Questions were asked in the House of Commons, and even now that the British people have agreed and promised to pay all their indebtedness to the United States, there are still some so simple that they think the rumor may have some foundation in fact. But they are fortunately very few.

In the United States it is apparently different. In that country, where assets are measured largely by their pecuniary value and sentiment is chiefly confined to the movies, there has been no disposition to doubt the authenticity of the rumor. No matter how the American people at times refer to the conservative tendencies of the British, they do not in their hearts of hearts believe that their Old World cousins are in reality poor business men. They credit them with very little less than their own ability at spotting a good thing. They know what they would do under similar circumstances—Take the cash and let the credit go. Why should clever traders like the British do anything else? It was very clear to a considerable number of them that the deal was as good as "cinched" as soon as it was suggested. A few paltry islands, which were of no real commercial value any longer, since the abolition of slavery and the introduction of free trade, what reason would there be in keeping them? But they counted without the true sentiment of the British, a sentiment which lies so deep that only those who share it really know of it, a sentiment which could do more permit the sale of their own kith and kin than it could permit the desertion of those whom they have taken under their protection. For there are duties attached to Empire.

A century and a half ago the British West Indies were a source of great profit for the people of England. Sir Horace Walpole, writing to a friend, complained that it was practically impossible to obtain a seat at Westminster, since all constituencies had been bought by East Indian Nabobs or West Indian merchants. Many a noble family today owes its wealth to the plantations which it used to hold in the Leeward or the Windward Islands. Our Princess Mary herself married a husband whose family owned great West Indian possessions. Jamaica, Antigua, Barbuda, St. Kitts, the Bahamas, Dominica, Barbados, Montserrat, Bermuda, St. Lucia, Grenada, St. Vincent, what visions these names must con-jure in the mind of a man who did not grow up in an atmosphere of barters? Pieces of eight and doubloons, Captain Kidd, Spanish galleons and walking the plank—what a mystery about them all. With the British perhaps, history was not so much a science as a romance.

Therefore the gods in the United States machine, putting a low assessment on the West Indies from the point of view of Great Britain and a high one from their own, made a proposition. They suggested that the islands should be added to the settlement of the war debt. A little later they stated that the suggestion had been received with favor. As time progressed their propaganda became bolder. They did not hesitate to state that "high British officials" had been in communication with the White House on the subject. All of which was intended to hoodwink the people of both countries. It is very certain therefore that the men who work the marionettes at Washington have some other project than that of helping Great Britain to settle her liabilities. Some other impetus has urged them to persevere in this ingenious campaign. What is it?—Panama canal or prohibition or both?

Murders Four to Get Their Money

Kills Three and Then Slays Woman Accomplish.

BUDAPEST, June 28.—Joseph Toth, 24 years old Hungarian, has confessed to the murder of Andreas Lachman, aged Hungarian-American, and told of a series of financial crimes involving the murder of four persons by which he endeavored to get control of Lachman's home and money.

Lachman returned from America last year with a comfortable fortune, purchased a charming villa and settled down to a peaceful old age.

His daughter, Mrs. Koevess, became enamoured of Toth despite the fact that she was 16 years his senior and that he was a grocer's clerk.

She conspired with Toth to murder the Lachman family. The first step was to get American passports which they showed to neighbors, saying that Lachman was returning to the United States. They then killed Lachman and buried him under his home, telling his friends that he had left. Toth then shot Mrs. Lachman and her 15-year-old son. Their bodies were buried in a garden.

Left alone with Mrs. Koevess, he strangled her and buried her body alongside the others.

Toth claimed the house and fortune of the entire family, declaring all had gone to America and left the property to him. Discovery of the bodies led to his arrest.

THE SEARCH FOR CANCER'S CAUSE.

London Daily Telegraph: What value humanity would set upon the discovery of the cause of Cancer we cannot appraise. One feels that all the riches of Golconda would be dross beside the certain discovery of the secret of how to banish from a million homes throughout the world the dark shadow which medical science today is powerless to turn away. Large sums of money will be needed. Much will be asked here much in the Dominions. The glory will be great to the British name if it is a British brain which solves the problem, but, of course, each step on the road will be publicly charted so that all nations may benefit equally with our own.

Talented Singer Gets Wonderful Reception

The Song Recital in the Methodist College Hall last evening, given by Miss Eleanor Mews, A.T.C.L., L.T.C.M., was largely attended and included His Excellency and Lady Allardie and many prominent citizens. The lovely appearance of the stage adorned by a lavish and gorgeous array of flowers lent to the excellence and artistic manner in which the program was given.

Miss Mews possesses a mezzo-soprano voice of fine pure rich quality and the varied selections of the programme displayed in full the particular beauty of her voice as well as, when necessary, its striking power.

It is impossible almost to particularize any of the numbers, all of the program being rendered in an excellent manner.

Miss Mews had a very appreciative audience and during the course of the recital several beautiful bouquets were presented. Assisting her was the Hon. Alex. W. Mews, who in several cello selections delighted the audience in his usually capable way. Mrs. Mews accompanied Mr. Mews at the piano. Miss Mews' accompanist was Mr. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M., who played in his masterly fashion.

Miss Mews during her studies won two diplomas, last, teachers which is A.T.C.L. and last year secured the artists diploma, L.T.C.M., so that she is qualified to appear as performer or teacher. Miss Mews' teacher, Miss H. Ethel Shepherd of Toronto Conservatory of music is well known over North America as a teacher of vocal art and in Europe enjoyed a reputation as a dramatic soprano, having studied under Jean de Reszke. For one encore Miss Mews sang last night "God's in His Heaven," the music of which was composed by Miss Marjorie Mews, her youngest sister. It is hoped that the public will have an opportunity of hearing a repetition of the Recital. The complete program follows:—

Scarlatti (1659-1755)—Le Violette, (The Violets).

Scarlatti—O cessate di piangere, (O cease to pain me).

Pergolesi (1710-1736)—Se tu m'ami, (If you love me).

Schubert—Hedge-Roses.

Schumann—Thy Lovely Face.

Schubert—The Trout.

Violoncello—Hon. Alex. Mews, (a) Berceuse from "Joelynn" Godard; (b) Gavotte, David Popper; (c) Melodie, Jules Massenet.

"Inter Nos"

The Advocate acknowledges with thanks a copy of the initial number of that delightful magazine "Inter Nos" published by the pupils of the Convent of Our Lady of Mercy Academy and which made its appearance in the literary field last month.

"Inter Nos" was published under difficulties, in that many fine illustrations and a great deal of "copy" were destroyed in the Trade Review fire several weeks ago. Nevertheless the publishers have given their readers something above the ordinary in this particular line of literary endeavour and their work in behalf of their Alma Mater in thus establishing a school magazine should be recognized by every ex-pupil of the College whether at home or abroad.

The editor of "Inter Nos" is Miss Betty McGrath, B.A. and she is indeed to be complimented on the excellence of the publication, an excellence which, if it can be maintained in future issues, will mean the future establishment of the magazine amongst the best of our local literature.

Amongst the many contributors to "Inter Nos" are Misses Helena McGrath, Mary Carey, Mary G. Harris, Mary Sullivan, Angela McC. A. H. Caroline Furlong, Sadie Organ, Sheila Conway, Laura Cantwell, Mar. Power, Ellen M. Byrne, Alice Wals, Marie Norris, Amy McEvoy, Mrs. Selina Sullivan, Mary Shortall, Beattie McGrath, Constance Kiely and Bessie Primm.

While every article contained in the magazine, whether poetry or prose, is well worth perusal. We must refer particularly to that of Mrs. Sullivan who was the first pupil of the Mercy Convent and whose virile and highly descriptive article entitled "Back in '61," may justly be termed a masterpiece.

It is seldom that a local magazine has secured the profusion of timely matter for a single issue and if the June number may be taken as a criterion, we have no hesitation in saying that the publishers of "Inter Nos" have already entered upon the road to success.

The Scotchmen were the first to score again on resumption of play, netting number 4, and just before the close of the game Eddie Phalen secured the one and only goal for his team. Owing to unfavorable weather conditions, the players were somewhat handicapped and the attendance was small.
